

Women's History

The fight for equal rights

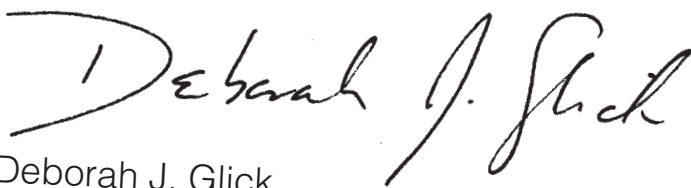

Dear Friend,

The women's rights movement started over 150 years ago here in New York State. Elizabeth Cady Stanton and Susan B. Anthony led the way in the fight for women's suffrage, helping women secure the right to vote in 1920 with the passage of the 19th Amendment. Since then, women have fought tirelessly to break down barriers and expand women's rights and their role in society.

However, the fight for equality is not yet over. While we've passed new laws to strengthen women's rights, unfortunately, glass ceilings still exist and we must continue to make progress.

This pamphlet contains information about important women who shaped our country's history. I hope you find it useful as you learn about those who helped pave the way for a better future.

Sincerely,
