

Assemblyman
Marcos A. Crespo
is helping New York prepare for natural disasters

Assemblyman Crespo helped pass a law that better prepares for natural disasters

- Improves emergency response plans of utility companies and increases fines for failure to restore service in a timely manner
- Requires new emergency generator equipment for certain gas stations so affected areas do not suffer a fuel shortage
- $4 million for natural infrastructure projects to limit the impact of violent storms and flooding due to climate change

“As we’ve seen in our area, failures in disaster prevention and response can have devastating effects on our communities. I’m working to ensure we are better prepared the next time disaster strikes.”
