Do you know...

all of the benefits of buying your food locally?

It supports the local economy - Buying locally-produced food products helps support small local businesses as well as the local farmers who provide them for sale;

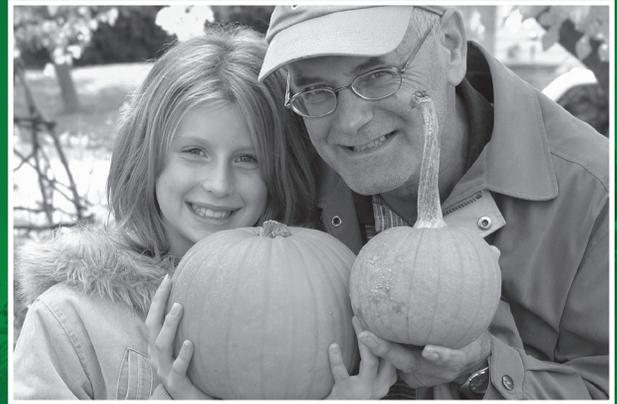

It provides you with fresher, healthier foods - Buying local means foods make it to your home faster and are, therefore, fresher and more nutritious because as food ages, it loses vitamins and minerals;

It's environmentally friendly - Local foods require less packaging and travel shorter distances, saving on waste and pollution; and

It creates access to the people who grow your food - Buying local food allows you to build a personal relationship with the person who has been with your food from the beginning so you know where it came from.

Visit a local farm stand!

Many area farms have their own farm stands, with fresh, locally grown produce. A listing of local farm stands and other agritourism opportunities can be found at www.waynecountytourism.com/agritourism.asp
