

NEW YORK STATE CHILDREN'S ALLIANCE, INC.

320 Schermerhorn Street, Brooklyn, NY 11217 (516) 406-0225 - phone (516) 710-7832 - fax
www.nyschildrensalliance.org

In 2013 more than 18,000 children and their families received immediate care and assistance at the 40 Child Advocacy Centers (CACs) located throughout New York State. These children were from every area of our State, from every type of family, community and background and they all still need your help.

On behalf of the membership and Board of Directors of the New York State Children's Alliance, Inc. (NYSCA), I respectfully request that the New York State legislature restore $1.9 million for Child Advocacy Centers in the State budget for SFY 2014-2015. This restoration will offset significant funding cuts dating back to 2007, and will allow Child Advocacy Centers to respond more robustly to child abuse cases in the year ahead.

In each of the last two years, the legislature has made a partial restoration of $750,000, which has helped CACs from Buffalo to Albany to Brooklyn provide critical services to children and their families. Unfortunately, the Governor's Executive Budget proposal for 2014-2015 does not include this funding and we are once again faced with the reduction in greatly needed services throughout our State. While we are cognizant of the fiscal climate in our State, we must take this opportunity to help you understand the importance of our mission and the need to restore this funding.

CACs are involved in the investigation of many forms of child abuse from severe physical abuse and sexual abuse to fatalities and human trafficking. While we like to think of children as happy and healthy with few cares and less fear, that is not the case for many.

The impact of abuse on children is well documented. It affects school attendance, academic performance, and graduation rates. It affects children's ability to make and sustain friendships and trust adults. More importantly, without proper interventions and support, childhood abuse affects their physical and emotional health and well-being both in the short and long-term. The good news is with effective intervention and support children can and do heal from their abuse and go on to live happy, healthy lives. CACs provide the opportunity for children to be heard and heal.

Child Advocacy Centers work to reduce trauma to child victims of abuse following a disclosure of abuse or neglect, while ensuring their offenders are held accountable. Using a multidisciplinary team approach, law enforcement, child protective services, prosecution, medical providers, therapists and child advocates work together to collect evidence, investigate allegations, and provide immediate and meaningful treatment to child victims and their families. We work to build strong cases so children are not forced to testify in court in front of their abusers, who all too often are close family members, friends or someone they know and trust.

While funding has been reduced by nearly 25 percent, the need for Child Advocacy Centers continues to increase. In 2013 New York's CACs handled over 18,000 cases of abuse and neglect, up from 2007 when less than 11,000 cases were seen in CACs. This represents more than a 70 percent increase in volume across our State. CACs are doing their best to respond to this growing need despite the loss of state resources. We fear that without additional funding, our Centers will not be able to adequately investigate cases of child abuse, and will not be able to provide the care and safety our child victims so desperately need and deserve.

We know that CAC responses are not only more effective for children and their families, but they also are less expensive than traditional investigations. For example, while only 21% of children in non-CAC communities are referred for Mental Health services, 66% of children in a CAC community receive these needed referrals. In addition, the collaborative efforts supported by the CAC result in law enforcement involvement in 81% of Child Protective Service investigations handled at CACs, as compared to law enforcement involvement in only 52% of cases in non-CAC communities.

Child Advocacy Centers enable service providers to investigate, evaluate and treat child sex abuse cases more efficiently than ever, while saving taxpayers nearly $1,000 per child as compared to a non-CAC investigation. A recent study conducted by the University of New Hampshire found that on a per-case basis, traditional investigations are 36% more expensive than CAC investigations. The average per-case cost of a CAC investigation is $2,902.00 compared to $3,949.00 for a non-CAC facilitated investigation. CACs make financial sense for New York.

In October 2006, the New York State Legislature recognized that Child Advocacy Centers are integral to the State's response to child abuse and codified the use of CACs as best practice for investigating, evaluating and treating child abuse cases. New York State now has long recognized the need for a collaborative, coordinated response to child abuse investigations. Today we ask for your continued support as Child Advocacy Centers work to provide every child in New York State with the best possible care in each and every abuse investigation.

The reinstatement of CAC funding to the 2007 levels will allow us to ensure that every child receives the care and treatment they deserve, that offenders are held accountable and that families of victims throughout New York are given the support necessary to heal. We welcome and encourage you and your colleagues to visit your local Child Advocacy Centers to learn more about the important work that they are doing everyday.

Thank you for your ongoing support of Child Advocacy Centers and for your time and consideration today.

Sincerely,

Stacy Osborn, NYSCA Chair
on behalf of the NYSCA Board of Directors and NYSCA Membership

The Problem: Child Abuse in New York State

The numbers:

- In 2012, 275 children died in NYS of abuse and neglect. NYS Office of Children and Family Services
- In 2010, Child Protective Services investigated reports of child abuse and neglect involving 72,625 children in New York State. 7,991 children were alleged to have experienced physical abuse. Child Maltreatment 2011
- 47 % of child abuse victims are under the age of 6, making this the largest victimization group. Child Maltreatment 2011
- 1 in 4 girls and 1 in 6 boys will be sexually abused before their 18th birthday. *Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. (2005). Adverse Childhood Experiences Study: Data and Statistics. - In 2012 in New York State, there were 10,763 children involved in CPS reports with allegations of child sexual abuse. NYS Office of Children and Family Services
- Nearly 70% of all reported sexual assaults occur to children ages 17 and under. *Snyder, H. N. (2000). Part of the Solution:

Child Advocacy Centers in New York State

“If we don’t stand up for children, then we don’t stand for much.”
 -Marion Wright Edelman, founder
 Children’s Defense Fund

- In October 2006, Child Advocacy Centers (CACs) were written into NYS law to provide child victims in every region of the state with “a coordinated and cooperative” system response to child sexual abuse and serious physical abuse “in an expert and timely manner” that “minimizes trauma to children and non-offending family members.” NYS Social Services Law Section 423-a
- Centers use a multi-disciplinary team approach to investigate, prosecute and provide treatment to children who are victims of abuse and their non-offending family members. These centers bring together specially-trained law enforcement, child protective, legal, medical, mental health and family advocacy services in a single, child-friendly location to respond to child abuse reports and the needs of child victims and their families.
- Increased usage of CACs and multidisciplinary teams has resulted in increased successful prosecutions of child abuse perpetrators. One study shows an average 94% conviction rate for CAC cases carried forward. Cross, T.P.; Jones, L.M., Walsh, W.A., Simone, M., & Kolko, D.J.(2007). Child forensic interviewing on children’s advocacy centers: Empirical data on a practice model. How long to prosecute child sexual abuse for a community using a children’s advocacy center and two comparison communities? Child Maltreatment, 13 (1), 3-13
- CACs are often the first step that child victims take toward recovery from abuse. 96% of non-offending caregivers who received services for their child through a CAC would recommend the CAC to someone else in their situation. New York State Children’s Alliance 2012 OMS Report
- Growth of CACs in New York State:
 - In 1994, the first NYS CACs were established in Dutchess and Erie Counties. Office of Children and Family Services
 - Today, NYS has 40 CACs, serving 43 counties. NYSCARCC
 - In 2012, 17,762 children were served by these 40 CACs. 2012 NYSCARCC Data Collection
 - From 2007 to 2013, the number of children being served statewide by our CACs increased by 59%.

The Challenge: Funding for CACs

Studies have shown that CAC/MDT investigations save as much as $1000 per case when compared with the cost of traditional investigations. Source: Formby, J., Shadoin, A.L., Shao, L, Magnuson, S.N., & Overman, L.B. (2006). Cost-benefit analysis of community responses to child maltreatment: a comparison of communities with and without child advocacy centers

NYS Funding History

- In 2007, NYS had 32 CACs (16 Tier I, 13 Tier II and 3 Tier III) that shared $7.808 million in state funding, including a $1,500,000 legislative add-on.
- Between 2008 and 2011, the number of Tier I CACs steadily increased from 16 to 35, while state aid decreased by $2 million, to a low of $5.229 million in 2011 - a 25.6% loss from the 2007 funding level.
- In 2012, the NYS Legislature restored $750,000 of the $2 million in lost state funding.
- In 2013, when the 2012 legislative add-on for CACs was not included in the Governor's budget, CACs worked with the NYS Legislature to restore the same $750,000.
- What this means to the children of our state: Child victims of abuse are not getting the system response that they need. At the exact time that CACs are serving more children and growing their programs in response to this increase, state aid has shrunk.

2012 Outcome Measurement System Report

Overview

In 2012, The New York State Children's Alliance was one of 17 State Chapters accepted by the National Children's Alliance (NCA) to participate in the pilot project implementation of the Outcome Measurements System (OMS) with children's advocacy centers (CACs). The OMS was first developed and implemented by Children's Advocacy Centers of Texas, an NCA Chapter that continues to utilize the system with its CACs. The New York State Children's Alliance implemented the OMS project with the participation of 16 CACs.

The purpose of the OMS project is to help local centers evaluate their programs in order to increase the quality of services provided to children and families and to elevate the collaborative efforts of the Multidisciplinary Team (MDT).

The system also allows local centers to report on two measurable outcomes:

- The CAC facilitates healing for the child and the caregivers.
- The MDT approach results in more collaborative and efficient case investigations.

Two caregiver surveys are utilized to measure the first outcome and one MDT survey is utilized to measure the second outcome. In 2012, the 16 participating centers in New York collected approximately 1580 completed surveys from caregivers and MDT members.
