REOPENING THE U.S. – CANADIAN BORDER

For months, Jones called for the federal government to reopen the United States-Canadian border. Reopening the border would allow families that were separated to be reunited and increase tourism and customers for local businesses. Now, Jones is calling for the vaccine requirements to apply to both sides of the border, as the Canadian government is expected to lift the COVID-19 testing requirements for Canadians who spend less than 72 hours in the United States.
