

Financial Assistance for Small Businesses Affected by COVID-19

The closure of nonessential businesses has left countless small-business owners and their employees without a reliable source of income. Federal relief legislation provides access to programs administered by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) that can help support New Yorkers during this difficult time.

FEDERAL ASSISTANCE

- The Paycheck Protection Program (PPP) provides low interest loans of up to $2 million to help small businesses with 300 employees or less, nonprofits or veterans' organizations cover expenses for payroll costs, interest on mortgages, rent and utilities. Small businesses in the hospitality and food industries with more than one location could also be eligible at the store and location level if the store employs less than 300 workers. Up to 100% of the loan is forgivable. The program began accepting new applications on January 11, 2021.

- The Economic Injury Disaster Loan Program provides small businesses with up to $2 million in loans to compensate for revenue lost due to COVID-19. Starting on or around January 7, 2021, businesses who apply for the EIDL program will once again be eligible for up to $10,000 in advance loans. To qualify, businesses must have less than 300 employees and have suffered at least a 30% reduction in gross receipts during an 8-week period since March 2, 2020.
