Dear Speaker Heastie:

I am pleased to submit the 2024 Annual Report of the Assembly Standing Committee on Small Business. It has been an honor to lead the Committee during my inaugural Legislative Session as Chairwoman, working on policy and budget solutions for small businesses struggling through tough economic times due to the COVID-19 pandemic, supply chain disruptions, and employee shortages.

The Enacted State Fiscal Year 2024-25 Budget invests in programs that support small business and encourages innovation that will help rebuild New York's economy. Included in the enacted budget is: $15 million in total support for the Centers for Advanced Technology and $14 million in total support for each of the Centers of Excellence; $12 million for the new Small Business Innovation Research (SBIR) program grants; and $4.5 million for the Entrepreneurial Assistance Program (EAP).

I join my colleagues in commending you for your continued commitment to supporting small businesses. The Committee looks forward to a productive legislative session so we can continue to rebuild and create a healthy environment for small businesses to thrive across New York State.

Sincerely yours,

I. INTRODUCTION, COMMITTEE JURISDICTION AND ACTIVITY

Small businesses are defined in State law as those businesses employing 100 or fewer people. According to Empire State Development in the most recent Annual Report on the State of Small Business, New York State small businesses comprise 98 percent of the State's established firms and an estimated 40 percent of the state workforce. Just about all industries in the state are represented by small businesses, including trade, professional services, leisure activities, construction, financial services, health care, manufacturing, transportation, information, and education. The annual report reflects the Committee's continuing efforts to help New York's small businesses.

New York's small businesses are integral to the State's economy, but the effects of pandemic, supply chain disruptions, and inflation are proving to be difficult for many businesses across the State. In last year's and again in this year's enacted budget, the State Legislature has created funding programs to help small businesses through various funding programs and statutory changes. Additionally, the Committee continues to promote budget programs and legislation that will improve access to credit, financial programs and technical assistance services for small businesses of all kinds, including minority-, women-, and veteran-owned businesses.

The Committee also works closely with several State agencies and entities to ensure they serve the needs of the small business community. This includes the Department of Economic Development and the Empire State Development Corporation, which are the State's chief economic development entities.

The hearing also examined how programs can be improved to provide a greater economic impact across the State and enhance their impact in promoting equitable and inclusive policies.

V. OUTLOOK FOR 2025

The Small Business Committee's support for New York's small businesses is unwavering. The Committee will continue to address the needs of small businesses, minority- and women-owned business enterprises (MWBE), and veteran-owned businesses, creating a supportive environment that encourages their growth, expansion, and stability here in New York.

The priorities of the Committee include ensuring that the state pursue policies and funding that promote long-standing New York businesses as well as the smallest of small businesses – those with ten or fewer employees. In addition, the Committee focuses on increasing access to capital and the expansion of MWBEs while supporting the development and commercialization of innovative new technology, adoption of alternative energy and energy conservation, workforce and economic development, improving contracting opportunities with State and local governments, veterans' business assistance, immigrant-owned business assistance, continuing to help small businesses recover from the effects of the pandemic and persistent inflation concerns, and supporting the economic growth of small businesses through New York's rich history and tourism attractions.
